

PRAYER TO MINGLE WITH JOY IN CITY PEACE OBSERVANCE

The high school students will remain silent for a two minute period at 11 o'clock. School will be dismissed at 11:10 for the day. A large number of the pupils will participate in the afternoon by attending the Edgerton-Janesville football game at Edgerton.

Other Legion Speakers.
Similar programs will be given in the grade schools. The following American Legion men have been chosen to speak at the various schools, having been given their assignments by Supt. Frank Holt: J. J. Sartell, Ralph Kamps, Dr. J. T. Clark, Dr. James Clark, John G. Robert, J. Cunningham, John G. McWilliams and Frank Sinclair.

Children of St. Patrick's school will attend services at the church, in a program will be given in St. Mary's school in the morning, but there will be no service at the church. A program is also being arranged at St. Paul's parochial school. Pupils of parochial schools, as well as the public, will be dismissed for the afternoon.

Although there will be no regular observance of Armistice day, the Catholic church, Rev. G. J. Pierce, will hold a short devotional service, offering prayers for the disarmed combatants in connection with the community peace observance Friday afternoon and evening.

The picture scheduled to be shown is especially appropriate. The title is "Lafayette, We Come," with a star cast including E. J. Lincoln and Dorcas Cassinelli. The picture was released since the signing of the armistice. It is said to have a great Americanization appeal.

NATIONS BOW-HEADS BEFORE UNKNOWN DEAD

heads. Off to the right, where the steps sweep up to the senate chamber, another group gathered about a floral garland, the first of the many to be set in place. Then, just at 11 o'clock, the grand main doors, huge bays, embellished with intricate figures and designs and long ago given the American republic, strangely enough, by France, on whose soil the soldier died, swung back and the waiting hundreds stepped upward, four abreast, to pass by the casket.

"America" Is Raised.
As the first line stepped within the hall, from the group beside the casket the flowers were being set in place, male voices rose in blended harmony that woke the echoes in the high roof above, now flooded with sunlight. They sang the last verse of "America":
"Long may our land be bright
With Freedom's holy light."
They sang with a peal of victory and no hint of sorrow. And the last notes died away down the long corridors, right and left as the line that gave the public its place in the ceremonies moved slowly on and out the western entrance, down over the terraced steps that, face outward, the white gleam of Washington monument straight ahead and still behind, seemed out through the center by the great shaft, the square white bulk of Lincoln memorial on the far left of the Potomac.

About the casket, on its low base, those who passed by saw the five soldiers still as though carved from bronze in their khaki trappings. At the head, arms rigid at sides, his own head bent forward until the taint of his cap hid his eyes, stood the non-commissioned officer, the red of his chevrons, coloring his sleeves.

State Floral Tributes.
At each corner, facing inward toward the center, stood a soldier, rifle butt grounded on the stone flagging, rigidly erect, but also with head bent forward until cap brim was level with the point of his gleaming bayonet. These soldiers moved not a muscle except at stated intervals when slight changes of position, made mechanically, seemed the physical strain.

By 10 a. m. a steady stream of people—soldiers, men, women and children—had begun a continuous march through the rotunda, the main entrance of the Capitol, Secretary Wainwright and General Harbor were on hand waiting to receive foreign delegations. Floral designs from foreign cities, which was the state's shield, completely encircled the rotunda.

All delegations came in from the north entrance and stood by the catafalque for the ceremony as the line continued to stream through.

Bishop Offers Prayer.
The first delegation was a committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America representing the Protestant churches of the United States. Within the 15 minutes allotted to it, prayer was offered by Bishop McDowell of the Methodist Episcopal church and a short sermon was given by Dr. William A. Brown of Union Theological Seminary of New York.

As noon drew near, the number in the line increased and the people moved through at the rate of about 100 a minute.

At stated intervals, delegations approached the catafalque for a brief memorial service, each leaving a wreath. The guards took them away, leaving room for others to come.

Premier Bland and the French delegation, the American delegation, carrying a huge bunch of pink chrysanthemums, tied with the tricolor of France, entered the rotunda. The premier of the French delegation, who had been standing silently for a moment and then moved out with his party.

Many Humble Offerings.
Many persons carried flowers, offerings of their own on which their feelings were a card. Of all those things that touch the heart and old women, grand parents of some soldier, perhaps, were the most visibly affected, tears streaming down their cheeks as they turned around for a farewell look at the flower covered coffin.

A three foot bronze statue, symbolizing the "angel of peace," was placed on the catafalque as the gift of the president of the Chinese republic.

WILL HAVE CHARGE OF MILITARY, NOV. 11

Gen. Harry H. Dandholitz.

More Blasting Shows Planned

Having had success with the two blasting demonstrations held recently, additional demonstrations are being arranged by the Rock County Farm Bureau in charge of township chairmen. The demonstration of dynamite and picric acid will be made by John Swenchart, land clearing expert from the extension department of the Wisconsin university, and their "old world" atmosphere. He does not attempt to exploit himself in them, but plays them with rare feeling for their period and the time in this playing. Picric acid is especially true of the Haydn "Arioso" variety.

The very modern final group contained a notable addition to piano music, the highest of many times for him: "It is a pleasure to be able to chronicle that Mr. Adams-Buell has been playing which for several years has commanded the respect and attention of serious and critical musicians."

The audience was enthusiastic and there were several encores. Among them were "Turkey in the Straw" and "List" "Rhapsody" and Brahms "Scherzo." The humor of the Guion number was irresistible. Altogether, Mr. Adams-Buell's recitals present and unfailing enjoyment to the entire audience, to whom he spoke with a human interpretation, which comes only from a master.

"The Guarded Heights," Nov. 19.

It was to be unveiled later in the day.

Britons Pay Tribute.
A few minutes before noon, the British delegation, led by Earl Beatty, Arthur Balfour and Ambassador Geddes, marched into the rotunda from the north entrance. A wreath of the guard attached the catafalque, holding aloft a huge wreath. As the offering from the British empire was placed at the side of the coffin, the ambassador stepped back and a Scot, his head held high, moved forward with the first tribute from the British possessions. Next came the wreath from Newfoundland, carried by a hardy son of the north, and then the tribute from Canada, placed by Sir Robert Borden, former premier of the dominion. A son of India, wearing a silk turban, and representatives from every land over which the union jack waves brought their floral tributes.

Adams-Buell Charms Audience With His Art

Last night at the School for the Blind Mr. Adams-Buell made his annual appearance in recital and once more gave convincing proof that he is without doubt one of America's best pianists. In a comprehensive program embracing experts from many schools and periods he showed as is invariably the case in this artist's program, an unusual ability in program-building and adaptability to the various moods represented. It was a fascinating array of compositions, and we were glad to leave so many new impressions.

Very interesting, and one which has the place of honor, was the Sonata by Marjorie Lacy, a newcomer in the field of composition. This work, still in manuscript, places the composer in a very favorable light and shows decided talent for writing colorful music. We would like to hear more of such energetic American spirit in this field.

The seldom heard Liszt "Fantasy and Fugue" which opened the program, was played superbly and served to demonstrate Mr. Adams-Buell's technical mastery which has been considered extraordinary. The contrasting Andyn and Old English pieces were charming. It should be noted that this pianist is a member of the Wisconsin university and their "old world" atmosphere. He does not attempt to exploit himself in them, but plays them with rare feeling for their period and the time in this playing. Picric acid is especially true of the Haydn "Arioso" variety.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Schedule Hardest Basket Games in Years for High

Jansville high school will have plenty of opportunity to continue its meteoric rise in Wisconsin interscholastic athletic circles, judging from the tentative schedule for the basketball season announced Wednesday by Principal George Basford. Several new teams will be played this year. It plans work out, including Fond du Lac and Baraboo. A new scheme will be tried this year. That is having two teams from different cities, both large and small, playing against two Jansville teams.

The first game scheduled is Dec. 16, 16—Delavan State School for the Deaf at Delavan.
Dec. 20—Monticello at Monticello.
Jan. 6—Brookfield at Jansville.
Jan. 12—Edgerton and Orfordville at Jansville.
Jan. 20—Beloit and Monticello at Jansville.
Jan. 25—Milton Union at Milton.
Jan. 27—University High at Madison.
Feb. 2—Fond du Lac at Jansville.
Feb. 10—Beloit at Beloit.
Feb. 17—University High at Jansville.
Feb. 24—Edgerton and Brookfield at Edgerton.
Weight of Material.
The dates of March 2 and March 20 are left open on account of the White-water sectional tournament. If the Jansville team does not compete, one of these dates will be filled with a game with the Fond du Lac team on their floor. March 17, the Jansville team will play the Baraboo quintet at Baraboo.

There is a wealth of good material for the basketball team this year, so much in fact that it warrants the playing of two teams in the field instead of one. Francis Crowley, captain, it is believed will be unable to play on account of injuries.

Security Candidates.
Rollin Gridley and several other stars of last year when Jansville routed its football defeat at the hands of Beloit by defeating them decisively on the basketball floor in two games will be a graduate in February and may remain for the remainder of the year.

In view of the new spirit inculcated in the students it is believed that a larger squad even than last year will report for practice. Principal Basford expects 70 candidates for the tryouts. The inter-class matches will open Dec. 6 between the combined 8A and Freshmen team against the Sophomore team. The Juniors and Seniors play. The following day each other and the winner of that match plays the faculty team Dec. 8.

BUFF DEFENDS TITLE THURSDAY; MEETS SHARKEY
New York—Johnny Buff, world's champion bantamweight will defend his title Thursday night against Jack Sharkey, in a 15-round bout. Sharkey has announced he will make a determined effort to take the title from Buff, who has held it only five weeks after wrestling it from Pete Herman.

EXPECT 100 GIRLS FOR CAPTAIN BALL
When the call goes out for candidates for captain ball among the girls at 100 are expected to respond. This statement was made Wednesday by George A. Basford, principal of the school. A series of inter-class games will be arranged.

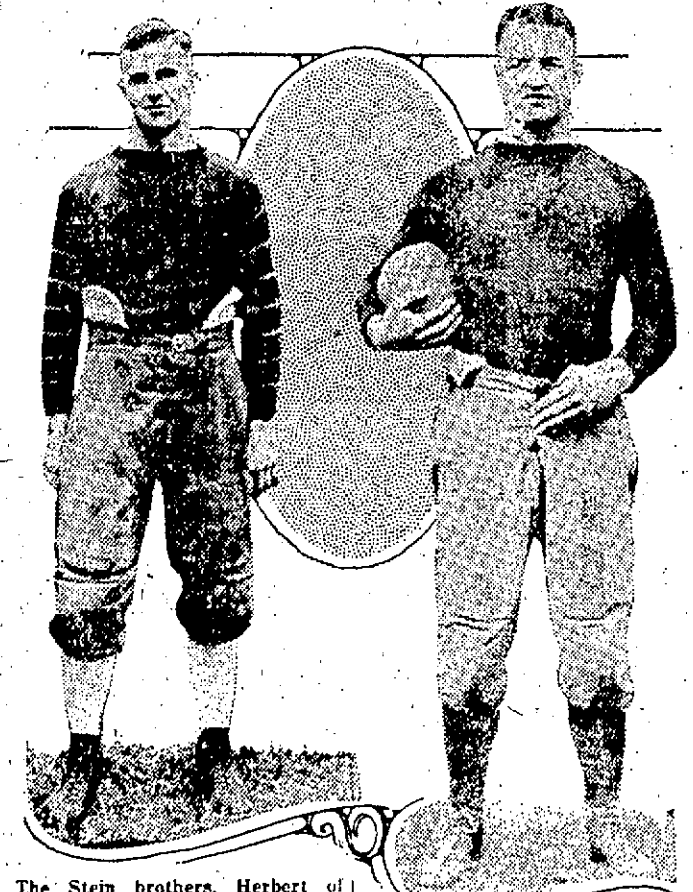

THIEF TAKES 'UN'S' OF GREEN BAY TEAM
Green Bay—Seven football uniforms, nine pairs of shoes and one football, were stolen from the lockers of the Eastside High school players Wednesday night, following a meeting held at the school. No trace of the perpetrators could be found Thursday.

The disappearance of the football equipment comes just before the important gridiron battle between the East and West side high schools Armistice day.
"It is not the cost of the uniforms, so much, but the fact that my players will be seriously injured in practice," lamented "Curly" Lambeau, coach.

DIED MANY DEATHS.
Our colleague, the Nomad, in his column the other day, explained how the linotype machine occasionally fails to drop a letter in response to the operator's touch on the key. The result of such a failure is sometimes striking as, for example, in this item from an exchange.
"The death occurred yesterday of Dr. William Stirling, one of the most killed surgeons in the south of Ireland."—Boston Transcript.

PERHAPS PUBLIC WAIL HAS FOUND WILLARD'S EARS
New York—Arrangements for a return world's heavyweight championship bout between Champion Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard, former holder of the title, regarded as practically completed a few weeks ago, now appear on the verge of dissolution.

Promoter Rickard, who planned the battle for July 1, next, in his arena in Jersey City, has exhibited impatience with Willard's delay in returning a signed contract for the battle. Reports have been received here that Willard has made a "strike" in one of his oil investments and if they are true, it is regarded as unlikely that he will devote the necessary time to training for another match with Dempsey.

DEATH RODE STORM JUST DECADÉ AGO

Ten Years Friday, November 11, Since Tornado Hit County.

Ten years ago Friday afternoon, Nov. 11, 1911, Rock county was convulsed with the harvest over, corn in sheels and farms being prepared for the winter. Rock county was at peace with the world. During the early afternoon of the 11th day of the 11th month of the 11th year of 1911, there was a death in thunderbolt of a tornado which swept from the west section of the county around Orfordville in Springfield town across to the north-east section of Lima town, leaving in waste a strip 20 rods to half a mile wide.

Nothing resisted that wind. In its path was destruction, ruin and death. It was the worst calamity in the history of the county.

Farms laid to waste. Model farms were left a waste. Stock was killed, crops scattered to each wind and a swathe left across the fields and if swept by the surge of desolation. Great elm and maple trees fared the same. Huge trees were blown up and uprooted. Vehicles were lifted into the air and were wrapped around a tree or telephone post that escaped the wrath of the tornado. Sweeping across Springfield valley and near Orfordville the peak of the tornado struck the same village, wrecking the school house, and then across Plymouth straight towards Janesville.

There was a freak twist of the gale and it edged northward striking farms along the footville road to come within a half mile of this city. The bank of the river was caused by the Hugh C. Hemmingsway and J. B. Sprackling farm on the Edgerton road. From there it came to Milton Junction where the road was twisted into a loop, fields with only here and there serious damage to buildings on the edge.

End Near Co. Line. Hitting one of the Milton, Wisconsin, buildings were demolished, the gale swept on through Lima and spent itself near the county line. Some damage was caused near Edgerton for the tornado twisted here and there, shooting down from one place to another, dipping down in one district to lift in another, but always with sufficient power to kill and destroy.

There were freaks and phenomenal facts about the tornado which so completely destroyed. Only cellars remained. Flying through the air were buildings, tanks, stock, trees and corn shocks. It was complete demolition.

Victims were killed by falling shocks or picked up to be crushed when the tornado dropped them to the ground. People then believed the cyclone and feathers could be driven through a plank and poles be wedged through the trunk of a tree.

There were nine killed and more than 50 injured. The worst wreck scene was on the Schmitt farm, near Hanover, where three were killed outright. One of the family had been hurled 10 feet and landed into the ground to the shoulders. Such was the destruction and death.

Roads were blocked. Fences formed an entanglement for the victims. Whole corn fields where corn was shocked were barren, the corn scattered everywhere.

School houses at Willowdale and Saunders near Milton were wrecked. The tornado came on Saturday afternoon or there would have been many killed in the two schools destroyed. A total of $75,000 in tobacco was lost and more than $250,000 in stock. Not a piece of wood remained on some farms.

Relief Squadrons. Then came the relief work. The Gazette office was the headquarters of the organized campaign to aid. Supplies were forth to aid the stricken the day following as soon as the roads could be cleared. All clubs, lodges and churches aided to supply food, clothing and money.

The revival came quickly and now only a few signs are visible of the tornado only 10 years ago. The scars have been healed. New buildings and remodeled farms resulted. Among the wrecked were those owned or occupied by C. O. Osgood, Nick Larsen, Martin Runnans, J. A. Osgood, Arthur Stockman, G. E. Coon, Roy Cary, Charles, August Koppen, William Slain, Anton Schmitt, John Crowder, William Bennett, Frank Welch, T. P. Kelly, J. B. Sprackling, Hugh Hemmingsway and W. Douglas.

Lax Motorists Are Listed at Police Station

Under a recent order from Chief Charles Newman, police here are compiling a list of all motorists caught running their cars at night not properly licensed. A half dozen names are already on the list, with more being added every night.

In one narrow streetway from several different parts of these huge piles carry the beads into the building. This is just one small item that helps to consume three million gallons of water daily.

Upon their entrance into the building, the beads are carried in a monster wheel to the washers, where they are cleaned like clothes in an automatic washing-machine. They are then carried on belts past the three men who pick out all weeds and foreign substances to the carriers that run them to the top of the building and throw them into the huge shredders. Just before entering these they are weighed with an automatic machine.

Piled in Cylinders
From the shredder, they come out on the second floor onto a large belt that runs about half the length of the building. On either side of this belt, the beads are carried in a monster wheel to the washers, where they are cleaned like clothes in an automatic washing-machine. They are then carried on belts past the three men who pick out all weeds and foreign substances to the carriers that run them to the top of the building and throw them into the huge shredders. Just before entering these they are weighed with an automatic machine.

The purpose is to put an end to the violations, which have become very numerous the past few weeks," explained the chief. "Every driver we catch a second time with his car not properly lighted will be taken to court. There isn't much chance of a motorist testing his lights and getting out of repair when he knows he has a fine staring him in the face if he's caught a second time."

ROCHESTER HOLDING MEN WHO ATTEMPTED SWINDLE JOB HERE
Rochester (N. Y.) police are holding four men on warrants charging them with whom are believed to be the ones who were in Janesville last July posing as agents for the Railway and Steamboat Company, and who were arrested here. Suspicion was aroused here when the two, who were about to collect $10 from a factory, fled when the manager went into a telephone booth to make inquiries. The men, Shannon, secretary of the association, has been notified by Chief Charles Newman, and is taking the matter up with police of Rochester.

Sugar Plant Busy Place This Month Turning Out 60 Tons of "Sweet" Daily

For 30 days each year, a small city is in activity near Janesville, with large buildings emitting smoke, trains running to and fro, whistles blowing and men constantly at work 24 hours per day—only to turn into a deserted place, however, for the rest of the year. This place is the factory of the Rock County Sugar company, located southeast of the city.

Starting about the middle of October each year, every machine in the huge building is kept constantly at work and each worker has a certain amount of work and watching to do until the dirty beads at one end of the building are transformed to pure white crystals of the sugar and out the other end of the building to be sacked and shipped.

The process is a lengthy but interesting one and after a tour of the building and hearing of the vast amounts of beads and other materials consumed in making the sugar and the work of so many men, one no longer wonders that the price was high at one time of the sugar.

Process of Manufacture
Beets, brought in as much as possible from the surrounding country, are dumped in the huge, roofless sheds at the base of the factory. Here they remain until they are needed in the factory and are then removed to make room for more. Long narrow sluiceways from several different parts of these huge piles carry the beads into the building. This is just one small item that helps to consume three million gallons of water daily.

Upon their entrance into the building, the beads are carried in a monster wheel to the washers, where they are cleaned like clothes in an automatic washing-machine. They are then carried on belts past the three men who pick out all weeds and foreign substances to the carriers that run them to the top of the building and throw them into the huge shredders. process, which removes all moisture. This is sucked and sold for stock food. The brown "molasses" that remains is also sold for stock food, being unfit for human consumption. An average of 60 tons of beets is consumed every 24 hours with a larger amount being used some days. The average now is closer to 60 or 65 tons, as the low production of the first few days out the general average. From this comes 120,000 pounds of sugar, called white sugar, and as much as 180,000 pounds of sugar is produced. The automatic sack filler has proved to be a time saving device, all with the aid of only three men, 250 sacks can be filled and sewed up each hour.

Large Power Plant
The power plant itself, in a building adjoining the main one, is a huge power, where a force of 3,000 horses is made by the immense boilers. Large numbers of men are kept constantly at work shoveling the 120 tons of coal consumed daily. In this building also is the room for slaking the lime and the one for repairing the tools.

Offices for the plant occupy still another building, the smaller one near the road. Here a large office force is kept at work during the day and often at night.

"Prospects for a good season are bright this year," said William C. Frost, manager. "We started working soon after the middle of October with a force of 225 or 230 men and will be busy until the season closes in six or seven weeks."

While many men have the same positions each year, there are also a large number of "boilers" who take less responsible positions. It was said: "Little difficulty was experienced in securing enough men this year."

JANESVILLE BONDS IN GREAT DEMAND

Many Inquiries on $70,000 Issue—City Clerk Prepares Paving Bonds.

City of Janesville securities are in demand by financial firms throughout the middle west as shown by the many inquiries being received from bond houses and banks in regard to the $70,000 bond issue recently authorized to complete the new high school. Although it is not planned to hold the bond sale until next Friday, a dozen inquiries have already been received by City Clerk E. J. Sartell and City Treasurer W. J. Lemmink. The bonds bear interest at five and one-half per cent and mature at the rate of $3,500 per year for 20 years.

Sell Bonds "Over Counter"
City Clerk Sartell in this week drawing up several thousand dollars worth of bonds under property on Hickory and Glen streets for reinforced concrete paving recently completed. The bonds are issued against only those places of property, the owners of which would pay their special assessments over a period of 10 years rather than pay the entire amount now. Where the owners of property elect to pay cash, the bonds will be issued.

These bonds will doubtless be sold "over the counter" at the city treasurer's office. Two years ago, when the city issued bonds, there was a big demand for them.

Special Assessments Payable
More than one-fourth of special assessments for oiling, sprinkling, sidewalks, etc., has been paid the past few days by property owners seeking to avoid the extra charge for interest in case the special taxes have to be placed in the tax roll. Of the $40,000 due it is estimated $10,000 has been collected.

Those affected have until 5 p. m. next Tuesday to make payments, as after Nov. 15 the amounts will go into the tax roll for collection in January bearing interest from the date the indebtedness occurred until the city treasurer turns over his books to the county treasurer in March.

Paving Held Up
Concrete paving on Racine street has been held up for a few days owing to the inclement weather but pouring is expected to begin by next week. George Croft, Janesville, who is supervising the job for the Gund-Grumham company of Preopert, Ill., was ready to begin pouring concrete Tuesday, but snow and cold weather prevented.

MARVELS WITH VEGETABLES DONE BY THIS GROWER

Dubuque, Ia.—Cheating nature at her own game and playing with cards of watermelon, tomatoes, fruit trees and muskmelons, C. W. Marshall, Minneapolis, Minn., has achieved the almost impossible feat of growing, out seedless varieties of vegetables, fruits, and coloring and flavoring muskmelons as desired.

A record of eight years of work is behind Mr. Marshall and his efforts. He told a select group of growers in Dubuque recently. Constant experiment, failures with repeated trials led to the winning of the game with nature.

Muskmelons may be flavored easily, he told the growers. A bottle filled with thinned sugar syrup colored in shade wished is the principal material needed. The bottle with a wick of wool set in a cork, tightly wrapped to a stick, is inserted near the stem of the plant. When mature the melon will be colored the desired shade and flavored according to the syrup.

Obtaining seedless watermelon, tomato, cucumber or any other variety of vegetable is a simple matter. After the vegetable fruit has started to grow following pollination of the blossom, a section of the vegetable vine is cut.

The cut must be confined to one section, and the vine must not be severed. Two other cuts also must be made in the same section. Cuts of two inches are sufficient to accomplish the purpose. With three lengthwise cuts made, the end of the center stem is severed and buried in the ground. The seedless variety is the result.

With six years of effort already expended Mr. Marshall has an apple tree bearing six varieties of apples, each coming in and producing fruit in their own proper season. Grafting is the secret. Each year he takes a spring from the variety he wishes grown on his "apple producer," as he calls it and grafts it to the parent bole of the tree. He hopes to grow eight varieties on the one tree.

Constant experiment with flowers, vegetables, trees and plants has led to many an interesting discovery, he says, with an unending field always open to the one who will spend time playing cards with those provided by nature.
